VLADIVOSTOK FLEET'S ESCAPE. Ships Safely Pass Through the Tsugaru

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUM.

LONDON, Aug. 1 .- A despatch to the Times from Tokio says that the Vladivostok squadron safely repassed Tsgaru Strait on Saturday afternoon. The Japanese squadron looking for it never sighted it. On their return journey the Russians evidently ran at full speed when far out to sea, but they passed through the strait at eleven knots, evidently fearing mines, which, however, the Japanese are unwilling to lay in the fairways of trade.

THE MANCHURIA ARRIVES.

Big Steamship Reached San Francisco

From Norfolk in 45 Days-No Stops. SAN FRANCISCO, July 31.—The big Pacific Mail steamship Manchuria arrived this evening, forty-five days from Norfolk, in charge of Capt. Saunders. She carried coal as ballast and hadn't touched at any port since leaving the East.

The Manchuria is a sister ship of the Mongolia. Although she is one of the largest freight carriers in the world, she will take only passengers to the Orient until the present order against carrying Oriental freight is revoked.

NO SUBMARINES FOR JAPAN.

Steamship China, Which Was to Carry Them, Will Not Take Them.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 31.-The decision of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company to accept no more freight for Japanese ports will be felt keenly by Japan, as vast quantities of food and war supplies will be tied up. The steamer China, which was scheduled to sail soon, was to carry submarine boats for the Japanese Government. but the navy of the Mikado will be deprived of these destroyers.

He was not allowed to bid farewell to with them in any way.

HOLY WAR AGAINST BRITAIN. Travellers in Mongolia Discover a Move

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN ST. PETERSBURG, July 31.-Two British correspondents who were not allowed to accompany the Japanese to the front, and who surreptitiously went to Corea and thence to Manchuria, where they obtained Gen. Kouropatkin's permission to go to St. Petersburg over the Gobi desert by way of Kalgan, Kiakhta and through Siberia, have arrived here. They tell an intéresting story in connection with the British Tibetan expedition.

They chose the Gobi route because they heard that a movement was on foot in Mongolia to raise an army to help the Tibetans against the British. At Urga, which is the second stronghold of Buddhism in the world, a great meeting was being prepared for Aug. 2. Tens of thousands lamas and disciples were already arrivng. Almost every third man in that country is a lama.

Priests and apostles are now being sent to India and China and even to Japan to preach a holy war against Great Britain. The lamas, who are nominally vowed to celibacy, are magnificent men physically and are gorgeously dressed.

The correspondent called on the Living Buddha, a young man of 30 years, who is second only to the Grand Lama of Lhasa. He refused to see any Englishmen, declaring that the English had no right to his dominions. The correspondents sent presents, but the servitors threw them over a wall, and loosened all the dogs, including a wolfhound, which was a presen from the Czar.

While travelling the 220 miles from Urga to Kiakhta, the correspondents passed to Urga, many of whom prostrated them selves at every second step. Their fore heads were covered with sores.

Innumerable caravans, some consisting of 8,000 camels or 1,500 bullocks and wagons with provisions destined for the Russian troops were met with. At Verchniudinsk the correspondents joined the Trans-Si-

The deviation of the railway from the township of Baikal, on the west, to the eastern side will be completed at the end September. At present the steame Baikal makes four trips every twenty-four hours across the lake, taking twenty-seven cars and 840 men each trip. Scores of tugs are ceaselessly towing barges. Some of the cavalry going to the front ride round the south end of the lake.

Since the beginning of hostilities it is estimated that 310,000 men have crossed the lake. Probably half of them have been detained to guard the lines of communication. At every culvert there are four soldiers, while at every bridge a detachment of troops is stationed. The line is guarded to Irkutsk, indeed, to Moscow. The correspondents think that Gen. Kouropatkin has a fighting force of 150,000 Troops were flocking to join the colors at Irkutsk. They looked to be splendid material. So far there have been few troops at the front except Siberian regiments.

VENEZUELA'S PLIGHT SERIOUS

ENGLAND AND GERMANY MAY MAKE A DEMONSTRATION.

Castro's Attacks on Foreign Corporations and Disregard of Protocols Provoke Powers-German Ultimatum Presented -Italian Claims Have Been Awarded.

Special Gable Despatch to THE SUN. PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad, July 31 .- The diplomatic imbroglio at Caracas is serious. The least incident may induce an immediate naval demonstration by Great Britain and Germany owing to President Castro's attacks on foreign corporations and the non-fulfilment of the Washington protocols.

The American and British legations at Caracas have protested against the embargo placed by President Castro on the Bermudez asphalt properties, and the German legation has delivered an ultimatum demanding the immediate payment of $3,000,000. The situation is serious.

WASHINGTON, July 31 .- Jackson H. Ralston of this city closed his work as umpire of the Italian Venezuelan Commission, thus completing the labors of all the Venezuelan mixed commissions. About 360 claims, aggregating $6,000,000 were filed with the Italian Commission, there being many more Italian claimants than of any other nationality, and the aggregate awards were about $600,000.

The largest claim presented was that of the Corvaia heirs for over $3,000,000. The original claimant was born in Sicily, but passed a large part of his life in Venezuela, acting abroad, however, at different periods in various diplomatic capacities for that country. The umpire held that according o the law of his native land Cavaia had forfeited his original citizenship by his diplomatic employment and his heirs could not therefore be heard before the Italian

Another case of importance was of the Martini company, which held a concession for various coal mines and the railroad from Guanta to Barcelona. The company claimed $1,800,000, because of interference with business by the paper blockade and closure of the port of Guanta. &c. The umpire held that under the terms of the concession, the port should have remained open and that the paper blockade was illegal Venezuela was liable for damages, and allowed the company $95.000.

Another important case, involving a claim of $600,000, was presented by the Poggiolis, who had been merchants in the State of Los Andes, and who had been assaulted, their assailants, by connivance assaulted, their assailants, by connivance of the authorities, escaping punishment, and whose extensive properties were destroyed through the joint action of the authorities and private individuals. The umpire granted an award of $107,000.

For the unlawful killing of two Italians with the sanction of Government officers, $8,000 and $10,000 were awarded.

The question debated at greatest length before the commission was as to the responsibility of benezuela for the acts of unsuccessful revolutionists, and the umpire, following us my precedents, held in a number of cases that such responsibility did not ber of cases that such responsibility did not exist.

In several cases of contract, where the concession had provided that all questions of interpretation and execution should be referred to the Venezuelan courts for settlereferred to the Venezueian courts for settle-ment and should never be made a subject of international claim, the umpire held that an individual claimant could not con-tract away the right of his Government to diplomatically present a claim and that the commission had jurisdiction. In several cases Venezuela had collected a second time taxes once paid to a de facto revolutionary government, but by the umpire's opinion each second payment was held illegal and a refund ordered.

The Government will soon publish a complete report of the decisions of all of the Venezuelan Commissioners.

Although alarming reports with regard to further trouble between Venezuela and her European national creditors have reached Washington in press despatches, officers of the State Department are inclined officers of the State Department are inclined to take a rather complacent view of the situation. If Venezuela has, as reported, failed in her payments to Great Britain, Germany and Italy, the preferential creditors named by The Hague Tribunal in the Venezuelan arbitration award, it is regarded as certain that those nations will take no active steps to bring Venezuela to terms without consulting the United States Government.

Government.
Further than this, The Hague Tribunal, in making its award, anticipated just such a contingency by providing that in the event of Venezuela failing in her payments the Belgian Government should appoint a commission to take charge of the custom houses at La Guayra and Porto Cabello and pay Venezuela's creditors pro rata out of the 30 per cent. of the customs receipts set aside by the protocol for that purpose. Consequently there is no disposition on the part of the State Department to regard any situation growing out of the failure of Venezuela to make payments as grave enough to warrant great concern on the part of the United States Government.

DEAD IN HER LONELY HOME.

Mrs. Jameson Apparently Fell as She Getting Herself a Meal.

Mrs. Annie Jameson, who lived alone in a rear room on the first floor of a tenemer at 205 West Sixty-sixth street, was found dead vesterday in her looked room. She had been dead for days. The table near the win-dow had been set for a meal, but the dishes lay shattered on the floor and the table-cloth was clutched in one of the old woman's hands just as she had pulled it when she fell.

Twenty years ago, it was said, her husband, who was a physician, died leaving her enough money to live on. No money was found in the room.

So far as known, her only relative was a nephew, William J. Green, who is employed in a real estate office at 11 West Thirty-fourth streat.

16 HURT IN A TROLLEY CRASH. Rear-End Collision Near Cleveland-Many

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 81 .- Two electric cars on the Cleveland, Painesville and Eastern Electric Railway, carrying 100 bassengers from this city, came together shortly before noon to-day in a rear-end collision one mile west of Willough Beach Park, the destination of the party, and sixteen persons were injured.

The first car was in charge of Motorman Rutland and Conductor Jenkins. It stopped to telephone to Willoughby for orders. The second car, in charge of Motorman Bilton and Conductor Lockwood, was following a short distance behind. Motorman Bilton did not see the first car until a few rods from it and then he was unable to stop his car. Bilton stuck to his post and was injured, being hurled back into, the middle of his car. A scene of confusion followed, the passengers, panicstricken, screaming and knocking one another down in an effort to get out of the cars. A relief car with doctors was rushed to the scene and the wounds of the injured were dressed and they were brought to Cleveland.

The picnickers on the two cars were mostly members of Hope Lodge, Daughters of Rebekah, who were bound for Willough Beach Park to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the formation of the lodge. Both crews were made up of green men.

MADE THIEVES CARRY LOOT To the Police Station, but Not Entirely by

Moral Sussion. Three sweating, swearing men, one of them carrying a heavy table on his head and each of the others lugging a weighty chair, stumbled up the steps of the Tenderloin police station last night, marshalled by Detectives Brennan and Sullivan. The starboard quarter of each of the three pained him excessively because for blocks the detectives had played a tattoo thereon whenever the bearers of the furniture had lagged in their steps.

The three in pain were John Claymore. Joseph McGuire and Frederick Dooley. They were caught about 10:30 o'clock coming, loaded with plunder, out of the store of a dealer in antiques at 253 Fifth avenue. The store was robbed once last Friday night and the detectives got an idea that perhaps the thieves might try it again. They found a dark spot in Fifth avenue that commanded a view of the store and of two buildings at the corner of the avenue and Twenty-eighth street, that are avenue and I wenty-eighth street, that are being remodeled.

Three tough looking fellows paused in front of one of the empty buildings. Two opened a grating in the basement and disappeared. These made their way to the rear of the building they entered and then were able to enter the store next door through a window in the second floor.

The centical stood on the corner smoking.

The sentinel stood on the corner smoking

The sentinel stood on the corner smoking a cigar. The detectives saw him and waited. Then the others reappeared, dragging two chairs and a table they had stolen. The detectives quickly nabbed them. "Well if you guys think we're going to carry this swag after we've been pinched, you'd better wake up," said one of the men to the detectives.

They set the furniture down and refused to budge. The sleuths drew their clubs and rapped two of the fellows pretty hard before they became docile enough to take up the burden of their burglary. Several times on the way to the police station they set the chairs and table down and stubbornly refused to walk any further, but the clubs always persuaded them in the end.

CHURCH STATUES BURNED. Mob of Italians Tried to Break Into Burning Church to Save Them.

Soon after mass had been celebrated in the Italian Catholic Mission Chapel of Our Lady of Peace, at 161 Twentieth street. Brooklyn, yesterday morning, the building was discovered to be on fire inside.

An alarm was raised and in a few minutes a thousand Italians were surging about the entrance trying to force the doors. They wanted to save the sacred vessels and two sanctuary, one of the Blessed Virgin and the other of St. Rocco. They were made of papier maché. The police, who had been informed of the fire, had to drive the people

NO SATURDAY TROLLEY TOOTS. Huckleberry Read Stops Them to Oblige Bronx Clergymen.

There will be no more Saturday trolley excursions on special cars of the Union Railway Company in The Bronz. President Edward A. Maher of the company has prohibited it.

The action is the result of a number of letters to President Maher from clergymen in The Bronx, followed by conferences with them. The ministers objected to the singing, band playing and horn blowing on the cars returning in the early hours of Sunday. They said it disturbed the sleep of their congregations. Further-more, some of the members of their churches

JEANNE AND NOEL LECOQ AND LEON YCRE ALL PRISONERS.

Lecoqs Were Going to France on the Looted Savings Bank Account of Mme. Grauby-Mme. Lecoq Wrote the Forgeries-In Hospital With Her Baby.

Jeanne Lecoq, and at her side her nine-weeks-old baby. arrived at the hospital in tears and all night long she cried and talked French, which no one understood. At the side of her cot sat a policeman.

Noel Lecoq, the woman's husband, spent the night in the prison at Police Headquarters. An adjoining cell contained Leon Yere, on whom Lecoq from time to time heaped bitter reproaches. All three prisoners are under arrest for forgery and the story of the crime as told by the police is Leon Ycre is employed by the Marseillaise French Baking Company at 302 West Thirteenth street, of which his brother, Charles Ycre, is president. Another employee is Jules Grauby, who lives in the building. Some weeks ago Mrs. Grauby went to France on a visit and in her absence young Ycre has been helping her husband keep bachelor hall. One night Grauby told Ycre that Mrs. Grauby had $1,050 in the Union Dime Savings Institution at Broadway and Thirtysecond street and that he kept the bank book in his trunk.

A few days ago when Grauby looked for the bank book it was gone. He spoke to Yere about it and also to Mr. Remi, treasurer of the baking company. At his request the latter went with him to the bank, where they were told that Mrs. Grauby had withdrawn most of the money.

"Why, that's impossible," said Grauby.
"Why, my wife is in France." The bank officials told him some one had drawn the money and by their advice he went to Police Headquarters. Detective Sergeant Carey was told at the bank that a man had come there about July 7 with Mrs. Grauby's bank book and a draft. Paying Teller
Armour compared the signature on the

When he attempted to question the man the fellow ran away leaving the book and draft in the bank. The next day another man, who said he was Mr. Grauby, came and said that his wife's bank book had been lost. He was told that the bank had it and that the wast lost that the bank had it and that his wife would have to come and claim it.

The alleged Grauby then declared that his wife could not come because she had just been confined. He said that they needed money badly and showed letters and a French Army record stolen from Grauby's trunk that seemed to establish Grauby's trunk that seemed to establish his identity. When he returned later with a note written on blue paper, the signature to which compared favorably with that of Mrs. Grauby, they gave him the bank book. get the money.

Accompanied by Detective Sergeeant Rheaume, who speaks French, Carey went to Lecoq's home at 598 Tenth avenue. They managed to get Mrs. Lecoq to write her maiden name and her husband's name for them on a piece of paper and then ar-rested the Lecoqs. The detectives say Lecoq confessed and said that he had comconfessed and said that ne nad com-pelled his wife to write and sign the drafts. In doing so he said Mrs. Lecoq imitated Mrs. Grauby's writing, specimens of which they had in letters of Mrs. Grauby to her husband which, Lecoq said, had been given to him by Ycre.

Of the $450 Lecoq said he gave $224 to Ycre, keeping $226 for himself. He declared he kept all of the $600. Before returning the bank book and other things to Ycre Lecoq effaced the $600 entry in the bankbook with a rubber stamp which he said he had made for the purpose.

THEIR CLOTHES TOO SUDDEN.

SHABBINESS ENTERED THE HOUSE, SPLENDOR EMERGED.

Thinker on a Stoop Near by Observed Both Police Together-Interval of Nudity

Two men who, the Tenderloin police say are panhandlers were unwilling guests at the Tenderloin station last night. That they were not dressed in good clothes and exciting the envy of their fellows was no fault of their own. They made the attempt to be well dressed and they succeeded for a brief time.

Richard Allen, who lives at 142 Wes Sixteenth street, was sitting on the stoop of his house vesterday afternoon when h saw two shabbily dressed men come slouch ing down the street from Sixth avenue He didn't pay any particular attention to the pair except to notice that they were very shabby.

When the two men got in front of 186 which is a furnished room house, they stopped for a moment and then turned and went in the basement way. Allen thought that they might be new lodgers. Having nothing else to do, he kept a-sitting on the stoop. An hour passed and two well stoop. An hour passed and two well dressed men strolled down the front stoop of the furnished room house at 136. Allen recognized them as the two poorly dressed men he had seen enter the house some time and both seemed to be thoroughly satisfied with themselves.

Both were puffing cigarettes and each carried a cane. They started westward and didn't seem to be in any hurry. They had replaced their dirty linen with clean and both seemed to be thoroughly satisfied with themselves.

Allen pondered and it began to dawn on him that the men might be sneak thieves. He put after them and at Seventh avenue he met Policeman O'Connor.

Into O'Connor's ears Allen poured the story of what he had seen and the cop headed off the well dressed pair and asked them where they were going. He surprised them so that neither could make quick reply. "We're going about our business and it's

With a grip on each man O'Connor walked them back to 136 with Allen as the guide. In the house it was found that the room of William Benson had been cleared of a good deal of his clothing. Benson's room was
